The Silberberg (silver mountain) is located near Wollin. This is the place where they say a treasure is buried. Only those who will go there at midnight, sacrifice a black hen, a black buck and a black cat and remain silent all the time shall be able to retrieve the treasure. Once upon the time the name of Wollin should have been Jollin and the town has been bigger then. In the west it should have reached Plötzin where still groundworks of old buildings could be found. Why this town perished nobody knows.

Today in modern times of electronics a black buck or something similar is not required. All you need is a small device which enables you to contact the blue sky above and you will find the treasure of Silberberg without any sort of cult. It is not located on the mountain but on the isle of Wollin.
